++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mostly dry with sunny spells.

Today:
Bright and breezy start, with most places dry with sunny spells throughout. The odd shower cannot be completely ruled out across the northwest. Staying breezy across the Derbyshire hills, but winds easing elsewhere. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
Clear skies and light winds during the evening. Cloud then thickens from northwest during the early hours, with hill fog and drizzle across the Peak District. Turning breezy by dawn. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Thursday:
Cloudy and windy, with most places dry, although further drizzle possible across the Peak district during the morning. Chance of a few brighter spells in the east. Rather mild. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Rather cloudy, and mild Friday and Saturday, but mostly dry. Perhaps the odd spot of drizzle in the west. Turning colder Sunday, with sunny spells, showers and brisk northerly winds.
